Doctors as Poets

Sponsored by the Hartford Medical Society

Wednesday, December 1, 2010. Join us at the lovely Town and County Club of Hartford for coffee, poetry readings by two of Hartford’s noted Physician-Poets, and lunch. Members of the Hartford Medical Society, Town and County and other interested parties are cordially invited to attend.

11:00 am – 11:30 Welcome and coffee
11:30 am – 12:30 pm Poetry reading and discussion
12:30 pm – 1:30 pm Lunch

James M. Streeto, MD, practiced Internal Medicine and Endocrinology for over 30 years at both Hartford Hospital and the University of Connecticut School of Medicine. In retirement, Dr. Streeto pursues poetry as an avocation, and has self-published two volumes of his work.

Nicholas Giosa, MD, practiced Family Medicine in Hartford for 12 years and then entered the specialty of Anesthesiology which he practiced at Hartford Hospital for some 30 years. Since retiring, Dr. Giosa has indulged his lifelong interests in poetry, art, and photography. He, too, has self-published a collection of his poems.

The Town and County Club is located at:
22 Woodland Street
Hartford, CT  06105
(860) 522-1109

[Tear off and return with payment]

Cost for lunch / lecture is $20 per person. RSVP by November 19, 2010.

Name: ___________________________________________ Number Attending: ___________

Please mail reservations and checks to: Jenny Miglus, Librarian
HMS Library, UCHC
263 Farmington Ave.
Farmington, CT  06034-4003

(Make check payable to “Hartford Medical Society”)